

Code of the Pyramids

A guided investigation game on the plateau for corporate groups.
This document explains how the day runs and what we need from you.

4 hours

on the plateau

20–100

guests

Teams of 5

3 flows of 10

6 stops

plus closing session

A game the monuments themselves referee

Guests arrive as an investigation party. They are given a field diary that belonged to a fictional archaeologist. Part of the diary has been rewritten by someone who never stood on the plateau, and the group has four hours to work out which pages are genuine.

The group is split into teams of five and moves in three flows of ten, each flow with its own guide. At six observation points the teams check a written claim against what they can actually see: how many openings there are in the north face of Khufu, how many subsidiary pyramids stand beside Khafre, which structures the causeway connects, and so on. Four of the six observations produce a number. Those four numbers open a combination lock at the closing session.

Two of the six observations deliberately produce no number at all. Teams discover this only at the end, and it is the point of the whole day: some claims can be counted, others only look convincing.

PLEASE NOTE, THIS MATTERS FOR SITE APPROVAL

- Nothing is hidden, buried, placed on, attached to or touched on any monument.
- Guests observe from the standard visitor paths. They do not enter closed areas and do not go inside any structure as part of the game.
- Every object guests handle is our own printed prop, carried in and carried out by our staff.
- No costumed performers on the plateau. Our staff work in normal clothing.
- The only staged element is the closing session, which takes place in a venue agreed in advance, not at a monument.

2 • THE DAY AT A GLANCE

TIME	WHERE	WHAT HAPPENS	WHO LEADS
00:00–00:20	Entrance and security	Tickets, entry as one group, flows are formed	Partner
00:20–00:50	North face of Khufu	Stop 1. Counting and comparing two versions of one page	Joint
00:50–01:25	Panorama point	Stop 2. Finding the spot a photograph was taken from	Joint
01:25–01:55	Khafre viewpoint	Stop 3. Counting what the diary counted wrongly	Joint
01:55–02:35	Valley temple and Sphinx terrace	Stops 4 and 5. Flows rotate between the two	Joint
02:35–03:00	Transfer, toilets, water	Stop 6 is worked on board the coach	Partner
03:00–04:00	Closing venue	Teams combine their findings and open the lock	La Royal Event

Summer schedule starts at plateau opening, roughly 07:00, so the closing session finishes before the midday heat. Winter entry around 08:00. Final timings follow the opening hours you confirm for the date.

What each side brings

LA ROYAL EVENT PROVIDES

- The scenario, all game design and the run of the day
- Lead host and three game assistants, one per two teams
- All printed material: diaries, plans, viewfinder cards, evidence sheets, stamps, tokens
- The lock box, the large plateau chart and the closing-session props
- Radio guide headsets for the whole group
- Guide packs and a briefing session for your guides the day before
- A site reconnaissance visit before the event
- Photographs taken by our staff during the day, printed on site for each team

WE ASK THE PARTNER TO PROVIDE

- Site access, tickets and entry for the group as one party
- Any exclusive or early access arrangement and the permissions behind it
- Three licensed guides, one per flow of ten guests
- A site coordinator who stays with the group all day
- Coaches and internal transport across the plateau, with standing points agreed per block
- The closing-session venue, booked and confirmed in writing
- Water, shade points and toilet stops built into the route
- A named contact reachable by phone on the day

4 • YOUR GUIDES ON THE DAY

Three guides, one per flow of ten

Your guides carry the history. Ours carry the game. The two run in a fixed order at every stop, and it only works if the order is kept.

STEP	WHO	WHAT HAPPENS
Observation	Our assistant	Reads the task. The team looks and counts.
Decision	The team	They commit to an answer and place their tokens.
Check	The team	They open a sealed envelope and see whether they were right.
History	Your guide	Now the full explanation, in as much depth as the group wants.

The single rule for guides: the historical answer comes after the team has committed, never before. A guide who explains too early removes the reason the group is there. Everything else is normal guiding work, and the more knowledgeable the guide, the better the stop lands.

Station detail, the wording of each task and the answers are handed to your guides in person at the briefing the day before, together with the route walked on foot. This document stays at the operational level on purpose.

Please confirm these in writing

We print the game materials against these answers, so the numbers must be verified on site before printing. Nothing here is unusual for a private group, but each point changes the way the day is built.

Access and entry

Access window	What exactly your exclusive arrangement covers: which areas, which hours, how many guests, and whether other visitors are present during that window.
Permissions	Who issues the permission, what it allows, and whether it needs to name our company as the operating partner.
Entry procedure	How a party of 30 passes tickets and security as one group, and how long it realistically takes on the date.
Opening hours	Plateau opening hours on the date, so we can set the start time.
Standard ticket	How far the standard ticket reaches at the Khafre valley temple and the Sphinx terrace on that date, and whether the lower viewing area in front of the Sphinx is open.

Movement and comfort

Standing points	Where coaches can stand for each of the four blocks, and how long the transfer between them takes with 30 guests.
Internal transport	Whether internal plateau transport is needed between blocks, and what it costs.
Shade and water	Shade points on the route and where we can stop for water. We carry 1.5 litres per guest plus reserve.
Toilets	A toilet stop inside the 02:35 to 03:00 block.

Closing session

The venue	Six tables for five, one central table for the lock box, and a wall or side table for a chart 100 by 70 cm. Fifty minutes, seated, out of the general visitor flow.
Permission	Written confirmation that printed props may be placed on the tables and that a short presentation may be given.
Alternatives	If no suitable venue exists inside the plateau, please propose one within ten minutes' drive. The session cannot happen standing in the open.

Photography

Guest photography	Our staff take photographs on phones and print team sheets on board the coach. Please confirm this needs no separate permit.
Professional camera	If the client orders a professional photographer, tell us what permit is required, its cost and its lead time.

Who does what, and by when

WHEN	WHAT	WHO
6 weeks before	Date held. Access window and permissions confirmed. Closing venue booked in writing.	Partner
5 weeks before	Guides named. Coaches and standing points agreed. Opening hours confirmed for the date.	Partner
4 weeks before	Reconnaissance visit on the plateau together with your site coordinator. We verify the counts at each stop and photograph every observation point.	Joint
3 weeks before	Game materials printed against the verified counts. Nothing is printed earlier, because the numbers decide the lock code.	La Royal Event
2 weeks before	Guest list received from the client, teams composed, personal materials printed.	La Royal Event
1 day before	Briefing for your guides and site coordinator: one hour in a room, one hour walking the route.	Joint
On the day	Staff on site 45 minutes before the guests. Closing venue set up during the fourth block.	Joint

7 · GROUP SIZES

GUESTS	TEAMS OF 5	FLOWS	YOUR GUIDES	OUR STAFF
20	4	2	2	4
30	6	3	3	5
50	10	5	5	7
100	20	5 plus a second start	10	12

Above 50 guests we run two starts with a gap of 30 minutes, or two closing sessions, depending on the venue. Seating for 100 at the closing session has to be confirmed before the package is sold.

WHAT WE WOULD LIKE FROM YOU FIRST

Three answers let us start building the day: what your access window covers, where the closing session can take place, and how far the standard ticket reaches at the valley temple and the Sphinx terrace on the date.

Everything else can follow. Happy to walk the plateau with your coordinator at any point.

The story, its characters and the diary are fiction. The monuments, the history and the explanations are real and are delivered by licensed guides. The scenario, the game design and all materials are the original work of La Royal Event.
